

Which Monster Are You?

1. Two students take this sheet printed 11x17 and fold it in half, making a playing board that blocks their partner from seeing their grid.
2. Each student chooses one of the monsters, and writes the name on a post it/notebook. This monster is their identity (who they are) for that round of play.
3. In pairs, students take turns asking YES or NO questions to determine their partner's identity by process of elimination. There are some questions provided on the playing sheet to guide them.
4. When a student eliminates an option (e.g., all monsters with only one eye), they can cross that monster off, or for multiple rounds with the same sheet, they can place a marker/token on top of the square to indicate that it is no longer an option.
5. When a student has narrowed it down, they end by asking "Es-tu _____?"
